

What is the Draft Redlands Coast Transport Strategy?

The Redlands Coast Transport Strategy will affect everyone who visits, works, or lives in our great city. For the next 20 years it will guide:

- how and where Council spends your rates: on local road upgrades, or cycle ways, or programs to change travel behaviour?
- which state roads, state infrastructure and state services Council will advocate for upgrade, duplication, extension or improvement of.

We think the draft strategy prioritises the things that are important to this community like improvements to public transport, including duplication of the Cleveland rail line, extension of the Eastern Busway, and public transport for our island communities; improvements to state roads such as Moreton Bay Road, Redland Bay Road and Old Cleveland/Finucane Road; and encouraging active travel.

Do I get a say?

Community consultation to inform the draft strategy has involved expert led public forums, centre studies, parking studies, user surveys, technology trials and planning exercises in which thousands of Redlanders have participated.

Now that it has been drafted we want your feedback. Tell us if it:

- Identifies our city's transport problems and priorities?
- Addresses the transport issues that most affect you?

We want you tell us what you think about the quality of state roads, and the local road network, peak hour blockages, the quality of public transport, parking and park 'n' ride, pedestrian and cycling options and the transport technology we should be looking to in the future.

Tell us if we've got it right.
